They say, 'Money is the root to all Evils'. I totally agree with the saying. Not only others, my urge to have more money changed me from a passive person to someone who develop greed as far as money is concerned.

It happened three years ago. I was at the LRT station in Kuala Lumpur when I spotted a wallet on the floor. I slowly dropped my bag on it. On the pretext of picking up my bag, I gathered the wallet together. Then, I went into the men's washroom.

To my happiness, I saw RM400 in it. 'Oh! I'm so lucky,' I said to myself. I walked out and looked around. I knew that the CCTV could not have spotted me. I decided to spend by making my first stop at the KFC Restaurant. Then, my next stop was the movie and then go to a shopping mall. I did not buy anything because my parents would suspect me then. I had a joyful time with the money for few days.

Nobody came to arrest me or anything. I even went to the LRT station almost everyday after that. Nothing happened to me.

I started working and earning a four-figure salary. One day, I withdraw RM500 from my savings in an ATM machine near Petaling Street. After keeping the money in my wallet, I walked around hoping to buy a new watch. I agreed with the price and reached for my wallet. My God!

The rest is for you to imagine what happened.

Money is essential and one of the most important thing in the world. (1)  However, we must always keep in mind that, 'Money is a good servant but a bad master'. If correctly used, money is a blessing. (2)  We must always practice moderation when using money. Money can be earned in many ways. (3)  But, the illegal way is something we should never practice. Even if we wash 10 cars in a day, we can earn more than RM100 daily in Malaysia. (4)  Even the handicapped and blind too are able to make money.

Some people are too greedy for money. (5)  This greediness of theirs had led to robberies, smugglings, kidnappings and even murders. Students should be taught in an early age on the importance of money and its value. (6)

Remember the saying, 'Money is the root to all Evils'. Earn money honestly, spend it wisely and do not abuse it unnecessarily.

- A They will do anything to get money.
